Lesson Manual # 3: The Learning Model

Assignments

- Read History of the Learning Model
- Read excerpts from Elder Dallin H. Oaks’ talk Teaching and Learning by the Spirit
- Watch video excerpt: BYU-Idaho: The Learning Model
- Complete Part 4 (key reflective insights) of the “ePrep” portion of your Journal document and submit this prior to the start of class.

History of the Learning Model

Shortly after his arrival at BYU-Idaho in the fall of 2005, President Kim B. Clark along with his vice presidents identified several initiatives that were aimed at moving the university forward. One of these initiatives was the creation of a learning model that would serve as the foundation for all learning and teaching at BYU-Idaho.

In 2006, President Clark asked the faculty at BYU-Idaho to create a model for learning and teaching. Input was given from over 350 instructors in a special faculty meeting. A faculty committee sifted through the ideas and suggestions to find common themes and approaches. In 2007, these ideas were distilled into key principles and processes that were articulated as the Learning Model.

Steps of the Learning Model include:
- Prepare
- Teach One Another
- Ponder and Prove

Preparation

As we devote ourselves to the Lord’s work, we must be involved in the hard work we call preparation.
Hyrum Smith learned this lesson in May 1829, just after the restoration of the Aaronic Priesthood and almost a year before the Church was organized. The Lord gave him a revelation through his brother, the Prophet Joseph Smith. In that revelation Hyrum was told that he was not yet called to preach. And until he was called, he should keep the commandments of the Lord and prepare himself. These are the Lord’s words:

“Seek not to declare my word, but first seek to obtain my word, and then shall your tongue be loosed; then, if you desire, you shall have my Spirit and my word, yea, the power of God unto the convincing of men.”

“But now hold your peace; study my word which hath gone forth among the children of men, and also study my word which shall come forth among the children of men, or that which is now translating, yea, until you have obtained all which I shall grant unto the children of men in this generation, and then shall all things be added thereto” (D&C 11:21–22).

In the revelation on priesthood given a few years later in Kirtland, Ohio, the Lord instructed the Saints further on this subject: “Neither take ye thought beforehand what ye shall say; but treasure up in your minds continually the words of life, and it shall be given you in the very hour that portion that shall be meted unto every man” (D&C 84:85).

In short, the Lord’s instruction to teach by the Spirit does not relieve us in the slightest degree from the necessity of making personal preparation. Indeed, in view of the foregoing scriptures, the Lord has emphasized it.

We must study the scriptures. We must study the teachings of the living prophets. We must learn all that we can to make ourselves presentable and understandable to our children, our students, and our investigators. That includes grooming, speaking clearly, and knowing how to avoid offending people through ignorance of their culture and their personal and family circumstances. All of this and much more is part of preparation. And preparation is a prerequisite to teaching by the Spirit.

Being Led by the Spirit

The next principle after preparation is the requirement that we desire to be led by the Spirit and so are willing to put aside all our preparation and follow the Spirit’s direction. That is a difficult principle to understand and an even more difficult one to apply.

When I have tried to teach that principle in the past, I have observed that some people use it as an excuse for not preparing. Some will say, “Since the Spirit may prompt me to cast away my prepared talk, perhaps I don’t need to prepare at all.” That approach is not “treasuring up in [our] minds continually the words of life.”

We should be in constant general preparation by “treasuring up” in our minds the teachings of the gospel, and when invited to give a talk or to present a lesson, we should make specific preparations. Most of the time we will carry through with our preparations. But sometimes there will be an authentic impression to leave something out or to add something. We should make careful preparation, but we should not be exclusively bound to that preparation.
BYU-Idaho Learning Model: Teacher Process

1. PREPARE

ONGOING SPIRITUAL PREPARATION
- Trust in the Lord
- Be worthy and obedient
- Pray
- Lay hold on the word of God
- Cultivate a positive attitude

TEACHING GROUP PREPARATION
- Meet with teaching group to prepare teaching plans
- Share ideas for engaging students in the class
- Make and complete assignments for class sessions and modules
- Review key concepts

INDIVIDUAL PREPARATION
To Teach
- Plan and design learning experiences
- Facilitate student preparation
- Study

To Learn
- Know and love students
- Study

MOVE FORWARD TO PREPARE

2. TEACH ONE ANOTHER

In-class Experiences
- Be on time
- Begin with prayer
- Establish and support learning model environment
- Require and facilitate student involvement
- Include all students as often as possible
- Ask inspired questions
- Listen
  To the Holy Ghost
  To students
- Be flexible enough to follow promptings
- Respond in constructive ways: encourage and build students
- Guide learning activities
- Allow students to be responsible for learning and teaching

3. PONDER/PROVE

After-class Experiences
- Review learning experiences
- Record insights
- Administer assessment activities
- Provide feedback to students
- Consider needs of individual students
- Review assessment activities and learning experiences
- Generate additional questions to be addressed in preparation for next learning experiences
One of the greatest explanations of being taught by the Spirit is in the revelation given to Oliver Cowdery at Harmony, Pennsylvania, in April 1829. In this revelation, printed in section 8 of the Doctrine and Covenants, the Lord told Oliver Cowdery:

“Yea, behold, I will tell you in your mind and in your heart, by the Holy Ghost, which shall come upon you and which shall dwell in your heart.

“Now, behold, this is the spirit of revelation” (D&C 8:2–3; emphasis added).

Similarly, the Prophet Joseph Smith referred to the spirit of revelation as “pure intelligence,” which “may give you sudden strokes of ideas” (Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith, sel. Joseph Fielding Smith [1976], 151).

In another revelation, Oliver Cowdery was reminded that he had inquired of the Lord and that “as often as thou hast inquired thou hast received instruction of my Spirit” (D&C 6:14). How did that instruction come? The Lord said, “Behold, thou knowest that thou hast inquired of me and I did enlighten thy mind” (D&C 6:15; emphasis added). The Lord repeated that same teaching in a revelation given to Hyrum Smith, wherein the Lord said: “Verily, verily, I say unto you, I will impart unto you of my Spirit, which shall enlighten your mind, which shall fill your soul with joy” (D&C 11:13; emphasis added). These are great descriptions of the way the Lord communicates with us by his Spirit.

Teaching by the Spirit is the Lord’s way. How do we do this? First, we must keep the commandments, especially the commandment to keep our thoughts and actions clean. Second, we must prepare. Third, we must desire to be led and be willing to be led by the Spirit.

I testify that these things are true. We have the gift of the Holy Ghost, the right to the constant companionship of the Spirit of the Lord to testify of the Father and the Son, to lead us into truth, to teach us all things, and to bring all things to our remembrance (see John 14:26; John 16:13).

---

Principles of the Learning Model

Learners and Teachers at BYU–Idaho:

1. Exercise faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as a principle of action and power;

2. Understand that true teaching is done by and with the Holy Ghost;

3. Lay hold upon the word of God—as found in the holy scriptures and in the words of the prophets—in all disciplines;

4. Act for themselves and accept responsibility for learning and teaching;

5. Love, serve, and teach one another.
View Video
Access and view the following video:
• BYU-Idaho: The Learning Model