

Hemming Foundation – Medical School Application Support Funds

General Information:

The Hemming Foundation has provided funds to assist those students who are applying to allopathic (MD) medical schools. Funds are intended to help offset expenses associated with application fees and travel to and from medical school interviews. Funding amount varies and is determined after considering both the strength of an application and financial need.

Distribution of funds depends on notification as to the outcome of your medical school applications. Maximal award amount is contingent on being accepted to at least one allopathic MD school. Lesser awards are offered to students who make a legitimate attempt to get into an MD school but are denied.

Send an email to Jason Hunt (huntj@byui.edu) with your travel/application receipts as evidence of your travel. Also, send a copy of your acceptance letter if you succeeded in qualifying for admission to at least one MD school. If no applications are successful, then send an email with your travel receipts and a statement that your application cycle has ended for the year.

Failure to notify us of your application outcome will result in no award given.

General Guidelines:

- To be considered, applicants must be able to report at least the following:
 - Minimum score of 504 on the MCAT
 - Minimum 3.4 Science GPA
- Travel/application receipts as well as evidence of successful admission must be received before students can receive any award.
- Students may receive a reduced award if travel/applications receipts are received with a statement that no application was successful.
- Please submit all applications and follow up material to Jason Hunt
